PREFACE.

It has been shown by experience that elementary Latin books, to accomplish their purpose, must present the fundamental principles of the language and its system of inflections in the simplest and clearest form. They must also provide abundant means for the application of these principles and for practice in the use of inflected forms. With these characteristics there must be combined a natural and attractive development, so that difficulties may be readily overcome by reason of the very method in which they are approached.

It is believed that the present work in its revised and enlarged form possesses these qualifications in an unusually large degree. The design has been to give only essential grammatical information, with the largest opportunity for practice. Attention is called to the selections for translation, inserted even in the early pages of the work. These narratives arouse the interest of the pupil, and neutralize whatever is detrimental in the fragmentary presentation of the language in the short sentences.

The American editor is responsible for the following: The Introduction; the additional pages upon the Subjunctive Mood; the revision of paradigms in the main portion of the book and the paradigms of the verbs in the supplement; the indications of long vowels; a few changes in orthography, such as transilio for transilio, conicio for conjicio, quotiens for quoties.

Few students when entering college are found to possess the ability to pronounce and read Latin with correctness or fluency. The suggestion is therefore made and emphasized that at the very beginning the pupil be required to read the Latin before any translation is given, and that reviews be conducted entirely in Latin. The great object to be aimed at is that the pupil should think in the Latin. The full pronunciation of the Roman method, with careful observance of quantity, will be found to be a most valuable addition to elementary work.

SHORTER LATIN COURSE.

INTRODUCTION.

PRONUNCIATION.

1. Alphabet. — The Latin alphabet is the same as the English, save that it lacks w.

Note. — k is found only in a few words, e.g. Kalendae, and as an abbreviation, e.g. K. for Kaeso, a Roman surname. y and z are found only in words of foreign origin. The characters j and v did not originally belong to the Latin alphabet, but are additions of the medieval period. They were used then to distinguish i the vowel from i the consonant, i.e. j; and u the vowel from u the consonant, i.e. v (pronounced as labial v, nearly our w).

- 2. Letters. Letters are either vowels or consonants. The vowels are a, e, i, o, u, y. The remaining letters of the alphabet are consonants.
- 3. Vowels.—Vowels may be long (indicated thus $_$), or short (indicated thus \smile), or common (indicated thus \succeq).

Note. — The long and short vowels differ only in the length of time required in their pronunciation. This is termed the Quantity of the vowel. The long vowel requires twice the time in pronunciation that a short vowel does. (In this book all long vowels are marked. The short vowels are indicated only at times to save ambiguity.)

4. Consonants. — Consonants may be classified as follows:—

Mutes,
$$\begin{cases} p, b, f \\ t, d \\ k, c, g, q(u) \end{cases}$$
Liquids,
$$l, m, n, r$$
Sibilant,
$$s$$
Double consonants,
$$x \text{ and } z.$$

5. Sounds of the Letters. — There are two methods of pronouncing Latin among English-speaking people.

They are: 1. The Roman Method.

2. The English Method.

The Roman or phonetic method is generally accepted by modern scholars as the one presenting in a fairly exact manner the pronunciation of the educated Romans of the Augustan Age. It simplifies pronunciation, since it has but one sound for each letter, and it aids in the study of Latin versification and comparative philology.

Note. — It must be remembered that the difference between the long and short vowels is a matter of time required in pronunciation. The English words chosen represent only approximately this difference.

a. Roman Method.

Vowels: \bar{a} is sounded like the last a in mammá.

ă " a in comma. " fray. ē " ĕ " " " fret. ei " machine. 2 66 ĭ " i "thin. 66 o "hole. ō " 66 "

 $ar{o}$ " " o " hole. $ar{o}$ " " o " rod.

 \bar{u} " " oo " pool, not like u in cute. \bar{u} " " u " pull, " " u " but.

Diphthongs: ae is like aye.

au " " ow in cow.

ei " " ei " feint.

eu " " u " cute.

oe " " oi " oil.

ui " " wee " tweed.

Consonants: b is sounded like English b, save that before s and t it is like English p. urbs = urps (not herbs), obtineo = optineo. So $scrib\bar{o}$ has perf. scripsi and supine scriptum.

c is sounded like English k, or c in cat.

g is sounded like English g in give.

j (i consonant), is like y in young.

q, always followed by u, is like English qu.

v (u consonant), is like w in woe.

t is like English t, never like sh.

s is like s in sill, not like z. It is always a sharp hiss.

ch is like k.

b. The English Method. The letters are sounded as in English.

Vowels: \bar{a} as in mate. \bar{a} as in hat. \bar{e} as ee "feet. \bar{e} " get. \bar{a} as "wine. \bar{a} " "fin. \bar{o} " note. \bar{a} " " tube. \bar{a} " " cub.

Diphthongs: ae and oe like e. au like au in aught. eu " ew " pewter.

Consonants: c is like s, and g like j, before e, i, y, ae, oe, eu.

Otherwise they are hard, as c in come, and g in get.

ch is always hard.

t before i has sound of sh.

6. Syllables. — A word has as many syllables as it has vowels and diphthongs.

A single consonant between two vowels belongs in pronunciation with the latter.

When two words are component parts of a compound, these parts must be indicated in pronunciation; as, ab-sum.

Note. — The last syllable is called the ultima; the next to the last, penult; and the last but two, antepenult.

- 7. Quantity. —1. A vowel is short when it stands before another vowel or h, also before nd and nt; nihil, via, laudănt, laudăndus.
 - 2. The following are long:—
- a. Diphthongs and vowels taking the place of diphthongs; accūsō (causa), exclūdō (claudō).

- b. Vowels formed as a result of contraction; $m\bar{o}$ -mentum (movimentum).
- c. Vowels before nf and ns and j (the i consonant) $\bar{i}nf\bar{e}nsus$ pronounced eenfanesus; before gn, gm as $m\bar{a}gnus$, $\bar{a}gmen$; sometimes before nc and nq $s\bar{a}nctus$, $qu\bar{i}nque$.
- 3. Syllables which have long vowels are long; syllables which have vowels followed by two consonants (except a mute with l or r), or a double consonant (x or z), are long.

Remember the vowel, if short in itself, does not change its pronunciation, though the syllable is considered long.

A syllable in which a short vowel is followed by a mute with l or r is common; i.e. it may be long or short.

8. Accent. — Words of two syllables are accented on the first.

Words of more than two syllables are accented on the penult when that is long, otherwise on the antepenult.

Enclitics. — Some small words, such as que = and, ne, the sign of a question, are joined to other words. The accent then falls upon the syllable immediately preceding the enclitic.

SECTION 1.

FIRST DECLENSION: SINGULAR.

Learn: —

Nominative and Vocative cases,	Mēns a	a table.
Genitive case,	Mēns ae	of a table (or) a table's.
Dative case,	Mēns ae	to (or) for a table.
Accusative case,	${ m Mar{e}ns}{ m am}$	a tabie.
Ablative case,	${f M}ar{f e}{f n}{f s}$ ${f ar a}$	with, from, etc., a table.1

Write down in the same way: —

vīta, life. fenestra, a window. colonia, the colony.

SECTION 2.

THE ACCUSATIVE CASE.

We say in English "I strike him," not "I strike he," and "He strikes me," not "He strikes I"; for in these sentences the persons who strike are put in the nominative, and the persons whom they strike in the accusative. But very few words in English as it is spoken and written nowadays, have an accusative case different from the nominative. We say, for instance, "The stone struck me" and "I struck the stone," and the word "stone" is not altered as "me" is to "I." In Latin, on the other hand, most words have an accusative case different from the nominative, and great care must be taken to use the accusative when the noun in English follows the verb. In such a sentence, therefore, as "He strikes the table," the table would be "mēnsam."

¹ The ablative case may be translated by from, by, with, in, or at. It is very often found with prepositions.

Obs. In putting the Latin sentences into English an a or a the will have often to be added, whichever of the two seems the more suitable.

For the words see the Dictionaries at the end.

- [1.] 1. Puella Jūliam laudat. 2. Jūlia puellam laudat. 3. Cornēlia mēnsam ōrnat. 4. Cornēlia Jūliam amat. 5. Puella Cornēliam amat. 6. Jūlia rosam laudat. 7. Puella Jūliam amat. 8. ¹ English used to be more like Latin in this respect; for instance, "tunge" (now "tongue") used to have an accusative "tungan."

SECTION 5.

SECOND DECLESSION: NOUNS IN -118.

The greater number of masculine nouns of the second declension end in the nominative singular in -us, and are declined like:—

SINGULAR.

Nom.
and	Domin us, ĕ	a master.
Voc.	,
Gen.	$\operatorname{Domin} \overline{\mathbf{i}}$	of a master or a master's.
Dat.	$\operatorname{Domin} \mathbf{\bar{o}}$	to (or) for a master.
Acc.	Domin um	a master.
Abl.	Domin ō	with, from, etc., a master.1

Nom.	YL(RAL.
and	$\left.\begin{array}{l} \text{Domin } \mathbf{\bar{i}} \end{array}\right.$	masters.
Voc.	j
Gen.	$\operatorname{Domin} \mathbf{\bar{o}rum}$	of masters.
Dat.	Domin īs	to (or) for masters.
Acc.	$\operatorname{Domin} \mathbf{\bar{o}s}$	masters.
Abl.	Domin is	with, from, etc., masters.1

The Latin for "O Master!" or "Master!" is Domine. Domine is called the Vocative Case. In all other nouns but those in -us of this declension the Vocative is the same as the Nominative Case.

¹ As dominus refers to a person, a preposition is used with the ablative case to express these relations, hence, with the master is cum domino, and from or by the master is a domino.

- Obs. In putting the Latin sentences into English a his, her, or their will have sometimes to be added. It follows that, in turning the English sentences into Latin, these words (for the present put in italics) should be passed over.
- [8.] 1. Dominus servum laudat. 2. Servī dominum amant. 3. Dominī amīcōs laudant. 4. Mārcus servōs videt. 5. Dominus rēgīnam saepe videt. 6. Dominī servōs saepe laudant. 7. Mārcus Jūliam amat. 8. Gen.	$\operatorname{Bell} \mathbf{\bar{i}}$	of war.	Bell ōrum	of wars.

SECTION 10.

Est — Sunt.

Est, is; sunt, are.

The Latin for "Julia is queen" is $J\bar{u}lia$ est $r\bar{e}g\bar{\imath}na$ (not $r\bar{e}g\bar{\imath}nam$). The rule that the accusative is to be put after the verb does not apply to the verb "to be."

It is not right to say in English, "It is me," and "It is him," but "It is I," and "It is he." So in Latin, est Jūlia (not Jūliam) will stand for "It is Julia."

Be careful, too, to notice that the adjective has to agree with its noun none the less because est or sunt comes between them. So the Latin for "the rose is beautiful" is rosa est pulchra.

[22.] 1. Puer est miser. 2. Epistula est longa.
3. Puellae sunt pulchrae. 4. Arma pulchra sunt.
5. Vir bonus non est miser. 6. Librī amīco meo grātī sunt. 7. Mēnsa magistrī plēna librorum est. 8. Magister Jūliam laudat, Cornēliam culpat. 9. Hortī pulchrī puerīs et puellīs grātī sunt. 10. Epistula rēgīnae bonīs puellīs grāta est. 11. Hortus rēgīnae semper plēnus rosārum est. 12. Magister pigrōs puerōs culpat, impigrōs laudat. 13. Magister puerīs praemium nōn dat; nōn sunt bonī. 14. Longa Mārcī epistula puellae miserae grāta est. 15. Puerī sunt miserī: magister dīligentiam nōn laudat. 16. Magister puerōs culpat; semper sunt pigrī.

Some nouns, soror, clāmor, mulier, for instance, are declined by adding these endings to the nominative singular. Soror therefore is declined:—

Voc.

SECTION 12.

THIRD DECLENSION — (Continued).

The Gender shown by meaning.

The meaning of some words shows their gender: mercator, a merchant, is masculine; mulier, a woman, is feminine. "A good merchant," and "a good woman," will therefore be declined thus:—

PLURAL.

bon ārum mulier um.

bon īs mulier ibus. bon ās mulier ēs.

bon is mulier ibus.

SINGULAR.

Bon ae mulier is

Bon ae mulier ī

Bon am mulier em Bon a mulier e

Abl.	Bon ō mercātōr e	bon īs mercātōr ibus .
Nama	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
MOIII.	Bon a mulier	_
and	Bon a mulier	bon ae mulier ēs.

"By," before a word denoting a person, must be translated by the preposition \bar{a} (ab always before a vowel, and often before consonants), followed by the ablative: otherwise the ablative by itself is enough. So:—

Rēgīna ā bonō mercātōre laudātur.

The queen is praised by the good merchant.

Rēgīna clāmōribus puerōrum terrētur.

The queen is frightened by the shouts of the boys.

[28.] 1. Alexander sorōrī tuae rosam nunquam dat.

Tertiam partem vindicō, quoniam mājor mihi quam vōbīs, animālibus imbēcillīs et parvīs, famēs est. Quartam, dēnique, partem si quis sibi arrogat, mihi inimīcus erit."

SECTION 13.

THIRD DECLENSION — (Continued): THE STEM.

The nouns of the third declension which have been given so far have been declined by adding the case-endings to the nominative singular. But in order to decline the greater number of nouns of this declension it is necessary to know another case as well. $R\bar{e}x$, a king, for instance, is thus declined:—

s	INGULAR	•	PLURAL.
$\left. egin{array}{l} ext{Nom.} \\ ext{and} \\ ext{Voc.} \end{array} \right\}$	Rēx		$ ext{reg}ar{ extbf{e}} ext{ extbf{s}}.$

Acc.	${ m Rar{e}g}{ m em}$		${ m rar{e}g}{f ar{e}s}$.
Abl.	${ m R\bar{e}g}{f e}$		rēgibus.

pater, mater, frater, juvenis, and senex.

And others again, which have more syllables in the genitive than in the nominative singular, make their genitive plural in -ium. Among these are:—

- (a) A number of words, mostly of one syllable, ending in an "s" following a consonant. What, then, is the genitive plural of ars, artis (art), pars, partis (part), mēns, mentis (mind), frons, frontis (front).

XV. An Account of the Battle of Bannockburn.

Rēx noster, piger homō et corporis voluptātibus dēditus, tandem, crēbrīs nostrōrum clādibus commōtus, exercitum comparat, et in fīnēs hostium iter facit. Rēx hostium, simul atque adventum nostrōrum intellegit, locum dēligit suīs opportūnum, nostrīs inīquissimum. Suōs enim in humō siccā firmāque collocat; frontem tamen tergumque āgminis continentēs palūdēs cingunt. Sinistrā flūmen erat, dextrā castellum, colle praecipitī impositum. Et, quod nostrī equitibus praestant, crēbrās in palūde foveās facit. Solum enim effōdit, et īnsuper locum longuriīs crātibusque sternit: tum humum grāmenque inicit. Cālōnēs omnēs servōsque equitum post vīcīnum collem collocat. Tum adventum nostrōrum exspectat.

XVI. Bannockburn -- (Continued).

Nostrī tandem sub vesperum adveniunt. Noctem non quiētī somnoque sed carminibus epulīsque dant. Contrā hostēs silentio opem divīnam precibus implorant. Postero diē dux hostium suos tālibus verbīs ad pūgnam incitat. "Mīlitēs! certāmen nobīs hodiē pro līberīs et uxoribus, pro parentibus et patriā, est. Deus nobīs aut vīctoriam aut mortem gloriosam dat. Sī cuī vīta gloriā cārior est, domum ex pūgnā excēdat!" Tum pūgna committitur. Prīmo peditēs sagittāriī nostrī in aciem indūcuntur; sed equitēs hostium, incitātīs equīs, irruunt; et summā audāciā nostros gladiīs hastīsque confodiunt: nihil enim sagittāriī praeter arcūs habent. Deinde equitēs nostrī submittuntur; sed plērīque, īn-sidiārum īgnārī, in foveās prōnī incidunt. Nostrīs conturbātīs, subitō cālōnēs servīque equitum in summō colle appārent. Nostrī autem, "Ēn, novus exercitus adest!" clāmantēs, terga vertunt, et fugā salūtem petunt.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

SECTION 64.

SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

Learn the Subjunctive Mood of sum, as found on pages 144 and 145, remembering that the meanings vary with the use, and are not fixed as in the Indicative Mood.

The uses of the Subjunctive Mood are both dependent and independent; but as its name (subjoined) indicates, it is used mainly in dependent sentences. In this dependent use the tense is determined by the tense of the verb of the principal sentence.

Consider carefully the following sentences:—

Audiō ubi sit, I hear where he is.

Audiō ubi fuerit, I hear where he has been.

Audiam ubi sit, I shall hear where he is.

Audiam ubi fuerit, I shall hear where he has been or was.

Audīvī ubi sit, I have heard where he is.

Audīvī ubi fuerit, I have heard where he has been or was.

Audīverō ubi sit, I shall have heard where he is.

Audīverō ubi fuerit, I shall have heard where he has been or was.

Audiēbam ubi esset, I heard where he was.

Audiēbam ubi fuisset, I heard where he had been.

Audīvī ubi esset, I heard where he was.

Audīvī ubi fuisset, I heard where he had been.

Audīveram ubi esset, I had heard where he was.

Audīveram ubi fuisset, I had heard where he had been.

Observe that the principal verbs in the first four groups are followed by the present or perfect subjunctive, while those of the last three are followed by the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive.

The tenses of the first four groups are: —1. present; 2. future; 3. perfect definite (perfect translated have or has); 4. future perfect.

These are termed primary or principal tenses. They are followed by primary tenses (present and perfect) of the subjunctive mood.

The tenses of the last three groups are:—1. imperfect; 2. perfect indefinite (perfect when translated without have or has); 3. pluperfect.

These are termed secondary or historical tenses, and are followed by the historical tenses (imperfect and pluperfect) of the subjunctive mood.

Rule: Primary tenses in the subjunctive mood follow primary tenses in the indicative mood, and secondary follow secondary.

Notice also that the dependent sentences whose verbs are subjunctive are really questions with interrogative words, but are not put as questions. These are termed Indirect Questions.

Direct Question: Ubi est? Where is he?

Indirect Question: Audio ubi sit, I hear where he is.

Direct Question: Quis est? Who is it?

Indirect Question: Audiō quis sit, I hear who it is.

 $\mathrm{Rule}\colon$ Indirect questions have their verbs in the subjunctive mood.

Interrogative words:—

quis, who? cūr, why? num, whether? ubi, where? quot, how many?

[149.] Sciō quid sit. Audīvī quot mīlitēs fuerint. Audīvī quot equitēs essent. Scit ubi fuerint. Nesciō cūr homō claudus sit. Imperātor audīverat cūr homō claudus esset. Germānus audīvit ubi servī fuissent. Pater audiet ubi fīliī fuerint. Quīdam homō interrogāvit quae nāvēs longissimae essent. Quae cīvitātēs in armīs sunt? Quaeram quae cīvitātēs in armīs sint. Caesar quaesīvit quot mīlitēs in exercitū essent.

[150.] Have you heard how many ships were on the sea? He knows where you are. I will hear where the enemy are, and will soon overcome them. They asked why we had been so sad. Will you tell me why you are so different from your father? (91, sentence 4.) Where will you be to-morrow? My friends will ask where you will be to-morrow. Have your friends often been in Athens? I asked whether his friends had often been in Rome. The general assembled his soldiers, and asked how many had been at home and how many in the camp. I had already heard where he was; where he had been.

FINAL CLAUSES.

Learn the subjunctive, active and passive, of $am\bar{o}$ (pages 147 and 151), and form the subjunctive of the following verbs:—

optō, desire; portō, carry; cōnservō, preserve; impetrō, obtain; labōrō, strive; postulō, demand.

Consider: —

Hominēs arma capiunt ut sē conservent.

Men take up arms that they may save themselves.

or in order that they may save themselves. or to save themselves.

or for the purpose of saving themselves.

Notice that ut sē conservent expresses the purpose of arma capiunt, and may be rendered in the various ways given.

Rule: Ut with the subjunctive mood may express purpose.

- [151.] Caesar postulāvit ut mīlitēs arma portārent. Mīlitēs semper labōrāvērunt ut sīgna cōnservārent. Imperātor optat ut nāvēs haec onera portent. Incitat mē ut in opere dīligentissimus sim. Tē herī laudāvī ut tē ad mājōrem dīligentiam incitārem. Sē armābunt ut pūgnent. Mīlitēs adventum hostium exspectābant ut cum dīligentiā pūgnārent. Puer ut ā parentibus amētur dīligentissimē labōrat.
- [152.] Caesar was placing the seventh legion on the left wing in order that the soldiers might fight most bravely. The teacher gives books to his boys that they may obtain wisdom. Embassadors had come from the town to obtain peace. I beseech you to love your brothers and sisters, in order that you may be loved by them. He exhorts them to put the enemy to flight. I exhort you to read these orations studiously. They advised him to build five war-ships, that he might overcome the enemy.

SECTION 66.

Subjunctive Mood — (Continued).

FINAL CLAUSES (NEGATIVE).

Learn the subjunctive, active and passive, of moneō (pages 154 and 158), and form the subjunctive of the following verbs:—

habeō, have; dēbeō, owe; pāreō, obey; placeō, please; taceō, be silent.

Examine carefully: -

Monuit më në arma contra patriam caperem. He advised me not to take up arms against my country.

 Rule : Negative purpose may be expressed by $n\bar{e}$ with the subjunctive mood.

Note. — The conjunction $n\bar{e}$ means "in order that not," "not to," "that not," "lest."

- [153.] Rōmānī castra circumdābant nē hostēs effugium habērent. Māgnus exercitus missus est nē agrī nostrī vastārentur. Epistulam ad tē scrībam nē culper. Equī postulantur nē mīlitēs gravissima onera portent. Rēx pācem cum Rōmānīs fēcit nē oppidum oppūgnārent.
- [154.] The general will fight so that his country may be saved. We warned the king not to demand much money. I shall station the cavalry on the left wing, so that the enemy may not hold the hill. They demanded that we should not obey the king. I shall take care that the industrious boys are not blamed.

SECTION 67.

Subjunctive Mood— (Continued).

CONSECUTIVE CLAUSES.

Learn the subjunctive of $reg\bar{o}$, active and passive voices (pages 162 and 166), and form the subjunctive of the following verbs:—

dīcō, say; dūcō, lead; vehō, carry; vīvō, live.

Examine carefully: --

- 1. Accidit ut Romae essem. It happened that I was in Rome.
- 2. Equites tam acriter pugnaverunt ut hostes superarent. The cavalry fought so bravely that they conquered the enemy.
- 3. Marius adeō inops fuit ut nōn cibum habēret.

 Marius was so poor that he did not have food.

These sentences show a use of ut different from that found in purpose sentences, for here it is used with the subjunctive mood to express result.

Rule: Ut in affirmative and ut $n\bar{o}n$ in negative clauses may be used with the subjunctive mood to express result.

Notes.—a. These clauses of result often follow such expressions as: accidit, "it happens"; reliquum est, "it remains"; necesse est, "it is necessary."

- b. After verbs or expressions of hindering, when made negative, $qu\bar{\imath}n$ takes the place of ut, particularly after the phrase $n\bar{o}n\ dubit\bar{o}$, "I do not doubt."
- [155.] Tanta fuit ējus dīligentia ut domum brevī tempore aedificāret. Accidit ut fortēs mīlitēs illō tempore in castrīs essent. Nōn dubitō quīn sint fortēs.

Tantus hostium timor fuit ut non Romanos exspectarent. Non dubito quin adfuerint. Nemo dubitabat quin naves aedificaret. Necesse est ut consuli Marcello pareamus. Accidit ut Marcellus cum exercitu Athenis sit. Accidit ut non domi essem. Non dubito quin nostri milites equites hostium superaverint. Caesaris exercitus tam acriter dimicavit, ut nemo superesset.

[156.] The enemy were so cowardly that Caesar's troops easily defeated them. Nothing prevents you from going to Athens. I do not doubt that the enemy will fight bravely. I am so poor that I have no money. Caesar led his forces before the camp so quietly that the enemy did not perceive them. The number of the enemy is so great that we may not conquer. The army is so brave that our enemies will not conquer. It happens that I have no book.

SECTION 68.

Subjunctive Mood (Continued).

INDEPENDENT SENTENCES.

The preceding exercises on the subjunctive mood illustrated its use in dependent sentences.

The following show its use in independent sentences.

Learn the subjunctive, active and passive, of audiō (pages 169 and 173), and form the subjunctive of the following verbs:—

mūniō, fortify; sciō, know; fīniō, finish; lēniō, soothe.

Examine these sentences: —

1. Dent tibi dī multa bona, May the gods give you many good things.

- 2. Utinam falsus vātēs sim! O may I be a false prophet!
- 3. Utinam Scipiō vīveret! Would that Scipio were alive!
- 4. Utinam pater meus vēnisset! O that my father had come!

In these sentences notice:—1. The subjunctive mood expresses a wish. 2. When the wish is possible, i.e. can be realized, the present tense is found (sentences 1 and 2). 3. When the wish is represented as not realized at the present time, the imperfect tense is found. 4. When the wish is represented as not realized in past time, the pluperfect tense is found.

Rule: The subjunctive mood is used independently to express a wish, the present tense denotes the wish possible, the imperfect denotes the wish as not now realized, the pluperfect, as not realized in past time.

Note. — Utinam often precedes the subjunctive of wish.

[157.] Cīvēs valeant. Utinam cīvēs meī beātī essent! Illud utinam nē scrīberem! Nē vīvam sī tibi concēdō! Utinam minus vītae cupidī fuissēmus! Ōrātor videat in prīmīs quibus dē rēbus loquātur. Utinam Caesar omnēs cōpiās prō castrīs īnstruat! Utinam magister discipulōs dīligentissimōs laudāvisset!

[158.] May the slaves be warned by their owner. O that my brother had lived and were now putting the enemy to flight! May the city preserve its liberty. O that you had heard the words of your teacher! O that you were well and happy! May the shouts of the enemy frighten neither the generals nor the soldiers. Would that my father were alive! May I live in the city where I have many friends.

SECTION 69.

SUBJUNCTIVE (HORTATORY) AND IMPERATIVE.

Another use of the subjunctive in independent sentences is that expressing commands or exhortations.

Consider the following: -

Audiam, let me hear.

Audiāmus, let us hear.

Audī, hear (audiās, with indef. subject).

Audīte, hear ye.

Audiat, let him hear.

Audiant, let them hear.

From these sentences observe that commands and exhortations are expressed by the subjunctive and imperative moods.

In the first person where there is no imperative form and in the third person, there being no imperative form save in the future tense, the subjunctive supplies the place of the imperative.

The negative of the hortatory subjunctive is $n\bar{e}$, not $n\bar{o}n$.

[159.] Nē difficilia optēmus. Plūrimum in amīcitiā amīcōrum bonōrum valeat auctōritās. Quidquid agēs prūdenter agās. Magister discipulōs moneat. Amēmus patriam et hostēs ējus vincāmus. Videant cōnsulēs nē quid¹rēs pūblica dētrīmentī capiat. Nē Caesar lēgātōs ad castra hostium mittant. Quam ob rem discēde atque hunc timōrem ēripe. Līberā rem pūblicam metū, in exsilium discēde. Cōnservēmus, jūdicēs, hominem quem amīcōrum dīgnitāte comprobārī vidēmus.

[160.] Let the boys carry the heavy burdens. Orators, do not praise yourselves nor your orations. Let us go to Caesar and inform him of (de) these matters. Boys, love your parents. Let the pupils

Restat ut doceam omnia quae sint in mundō hominum causā facta esse. Audīte, quaesō, jūdicēs. Hostēs tam fortiter pūgnāvērunt ut prīmīs cadentibus proximī ex eōrum corporibus tēla mitterent.
